Season 1 Director's Cut Lore Dossier

Petecastic Productions LLC · The Answering Line × Dkorn · Free lore perk — not for resale

Season 1 · Cast & world

The hero — Dkorn, the Circuit 13 ape. Born in a 12:49 AM storm transformer blowout in the 3 AM Valley: a 900-lb silverback lineman with branching tan antlers, a scarred yellow hard hat, a hi-vis vest, a climbing belt and a snapped steel collar chain. He throws giant wooden cable spools, swings on fiber whip-lines and refuels on Philly soft pretzels and night-shift thermos coffee.

The family & crew. Princess Voltia (amber insulator crown, fiber-optic lasso) runs the crown and the crew; baby Kilo naps through boss fights. Allies: Grizz the rescue pit-mix, Marjorie Dispatch, Pops Kowalski, Sparky Finch & Watt-7, Sal of the Neon Corner Deli, and heist duo Domino & Pickle.

Circuit 13 arcade world. Six signature stages: Rain-Slicked Cul-de-Sacs, Sub-Station 13, Backyard Alley Drop-Poles, The Tangled Attic, Neon Corner Deli, Underground Conduit Maze, then Storm-Head Tower. Bosses: Splicer Drone, Ice-Storm Limb, Raccoon Nest King, Phantom Outage.

10-Book Saga Roadmap · 2027–2036

1 The 12:49 AM Blowout · 2 Don't Wake the Baby · 3 The Golden Mustard Vat · 4 Static on Channel 13 · 5 Frost-Line · 6 Copper Tide · 7 The Amber Crown · 8 Shadow Shift · 9 Teen Kilo & the Chrono-Spool · 10 The Forever Grid (Ten Years of Light). One book per year, 2027 through 2036.

Director's note

Season 1 is about a night-shift family keeping the lights on for everyone. Every block matters — that's the whole show.

Crossover primer · two lines, one stopped clock

The Answering Line × Mars Fringe Pact

The Answering Line — Bristol, PA

A utility-horror line from the Echoes canon. The old Bristol mill clock was struck by lightning one storm night at 12:49 — and in the morning the hands were still on 12:49. Nobody has ever gotten it going again.

Lineworkers on Circuit 13, a neighborhood feeder whose blinks seem to open doors that shouldn't open, keep finding cuts that are "too clean for weather." Something on the other side of the line keeps knocking — and it knocks at 12:49.

Rules of the clock.

- The clock never reads 12:50 on the page.
- The wire "still knows the empty chair."
- Notes on the kitchen counter: "Love ya. Lights stay on."

Hook for Season 2. A second clean cut appears the same night on another world. Nobody gets caught.

Mars Fringe Pact — 47.2 Hz

Far from the domes, the Fringe Pact lives in the Subterra lava tubes. Their grid builders stitch salvaged power through living stone, and the Deep Song hums at a steady 47.2 Hz through every wall and bone.

Crystaberry gliders ride the chasm thermals between settlements, fueled by crystaberry glider bars and Spark-infused nectar brew. Pact food is spiced with vent-pepper rebellion — never dome-ration paste.

Lumos the Glowhound. A radiant, teal-glowing light-being dog who leaves glowing paw prints everywhere, turns serious moments into glorious chaos, and gets his own shallow dish at every meal (otherwise he tries to drive).

Where the lines touch

A grid that hums, a clock that won't move, and a signal at 47.2 Hz that sounds like someone answering. The two series stay separate canons; the crossover lives only in shared echoes — never a merged storyline in Season 1.